Cops make arrest after standoff

CRIME A 19-year-old man connected to a convenience store robbery was arrested yesterday morning after a long standoff with police in the city's west end.

Police say a man robbed the store on Stony Plain Road and 154 Street around 2 a.m. and investigators were able to track him down to his home near 158 Street and 98 Avenue. Police were unsuccessful in getting the armed man out of the home, but the tactical unit was called in to arrest the man shortly after 9 a.m.

Police spent most of the morning searching for a weapon inside the home.

No word has been made by police on official charges, as well as the identification of the suspect. METRO EDMONTON

Gifts, not body bags

MADD unveils new campaign to deter impaired driving

jeff.cummings@metronews.ca

Revellers will be given a stern reminder by Mothers Against Drunk Driving about the dangers of drunk driving at a number of city pubs this holiday season — something that will be wrapped up in a body bag.

Craig Mansfield, vice-president for the Edmonton chapter of MADD Canada, says bar patrons will now notice large, interactive posters inside bar and restaurant washrooms that resemble zippered body bags.

Once the bag is unzipped, a facemask is unveiled with a message that reads, "The last thing your loved one should unwrap during the holiday season. Designate a driver."

"We want people to think," said Mansfield. "When you are out drinking, how are you getting home?"

Mansfield says the $20,000 body bags campaign is a first for the local chapter as it tries to target 20-somethings who are more prone to getting behind the wheel drunk than any other age group.

"I think this is a fantastic idea," said Fern Jordan, whose 11-year-old daughter was killed by a drunk driver in 1988.

"Something like this has never been seen before and I think it would have a huge impact."

Jordan says the body bag posters may also remind others to stop someone from getting behind the wheel of a vehicle while intoxicated.

"It's very powerful," she said.

The campaign, ending in the first week of January, will also include radio ads that will remind listeners to not allow letting their loved ones open a "body bag" this holiday season, said Mansfield.

City cops made 1,955 charges for impaired driving in 2007, up from 1,546 in 2006, according to figures from the Edmonton Police Service.

Tailings ponds leaking, says new report

jeff.cummings@metronews.ca

Four billion litres of toxic water from oilsands trap-pings ponds — enough to fill Toronto's Rogers Centre two-and-a-half times — has been mixed with groundwater every year, says a new report released yesterday by an environmental group.

And new projects in Alberta's oilsands could boost that amount to more than 25 billion litres within a decade, said the Environmental Defence report.

"This stuff just doesn't disappear," said report author Matt Price with Environmental Defence.

Price says the data collected was from the oilsands industry, but a spokeswoman with the Alberta government's environment office says it's already aware tailings ponds leak, but there's existing industry-controlled systems in place that prevent environmental damage.

Kim Capstick says systems already in place catch the water and put it back into the tailings ponds before it reaches groundwater.

"In some cases, it is reaching very deep groundwater structures that are naturally contaminated because they flow right below the oilsands," said Capstick.

The report comes on the same day another report was released that says acid rain in Alberta's oilsands region could be forcing forest soils past their tolerance levels.

Cops warn of mall gift thefts

victoria.handysides@metronews.ca

There are thieves that walk among us in plainclothes disguises.

Thankfully, there are watchful eyes that lurk even deeper in the shadows that will keep our belongings safe this holiday season.

Police and a volunteer lookout organization are reminding holiday shoppers that thieves are lurking in shopping centre parking lots, just waiting for a prime opportunity to swipe packages from cars.

"It's really easy to drop packages off where they're in plain view and keep shopping," said EPS Supt. Joe Marshall.

"If you do that, you're going to become a statistic."

The number of legitimate-looking crooks creeping around parking lots is astounding, Supt. Marshall said.

Often times, they'll wait

Edmonton police are warning mall shoppers to be wary of people lurking in parking lots waiting for those with holiday gifts to lighten their load by putting gifts in unattended cars.

around until people drop gifts off in their cars to lighten the load while shopping.

When nobody is watching, it takes mere seconds for just-bought gifts to disappear.

Matching crooks in shady patrols around parking lots are a group of volunteers bent on stopping thieves in their tracks.

"We look just like everyday people and blend in the crowd," said Community Police Radio Network volunteer Craig Gaunt.

"We're looking for anyone out of place, and if we see a break-in, we call police."

Supt. Marshall suggests leaving packages in mall lockers, or getting them gift wrapped and stored.

Cops on hunt for senior's attacker

SEARCH Police are still searching for the car of a senior citizen who was brutally attacked and robbed last week.

The blue 2003 Ford Taurus was taken when the 83-year-old woman returned from shopping at a north-end shopping complex.

Police have confirmed the vehicle filled up with stolen gas from a station near 50 Street and 101 Avenue Dec. 2.

Hardware store employee charged in bomb scare at workplace

victoria.handysides@metronews.ca

A hardware store employee was charged with attempting to blow his workplace to bits, after a co-worker discovered a home-made bomb in the store Monday afternoon.

Staff and customers at a north-end Rona store (9603 – 165 Avenue) were forced out into the cold just after noon after an explosive device was found inside the store.

The bomb squad quickly arrived on scene and dismantled the device. Another device was found inside the store.

"It was confirmed to be an explosive device," said police spokeswoman Patricia Thenu.

It is not known exactly where in the store the explosives were found.

Police aren't releasing details about what kind of bombs were set down in the store, or what kind of damage they could have caused if detonated.

The person charged with placing the bomb in the store, 18-year-old James Glenn Gauchier, has been charged with possession of an explosive substance for an unlawful purpose.

Management at the store were tight-lipped about the incident yesterday, but did say that Gauchier was fired after the arrest.

Edna Jacobs labours to clear away snow from the sidewalks and bus stop in front of the apartment building she manages near 99th Street and 87 Avenue, yesterday morning. The city of Edmonton is encouraging citizens to lend a helping hand with sidewalk clearing after recent snowfall.

Be an angel: Grab a shovel

jeff.cummings@metronews.ca

Even 82-year-old Edna Jones, caretaker for a 99 Street and 88 Ave apartment complex, has to shovel the sidewalks — and she's also responsible for the bus stops surrounding the building, too.

"I don't think it's fair since I am on a bus stop, and I think the city should take care of the bus stops," said Jones.

The city is hoping Edmontonians lend a helping hand to seniors and the physically disabled by shovelling their sidewalks as those in need could face a $100 fine if it's not done.

Brenda Wong, a senior coordinator for the city, says she has been getting calls daily from dozens of seniors who need their pathways cleared since the winter dump of snow and rain over the weekend.

"We are encouraging people to look out for someone in their neighbourhood that might need a bit of extra help," said Wong, organizer of the city's Snow Angels program.

All property owners, including the physically disabled, are responsible for removing snow off their sidewalk, said David Aitkin, manager of the community standards branch for the city.

If a complaint is made to the city over a large buildup of snow on a sidewalk, bylaw officials will issue a warning to the property owner on the first offence, said Aitkin.

Path cleared for Ignatieff to lead Grits

Michael Ignatieff is about to seize his long-sought prize — the Liberal leadership, raising fresh questions about the future of the opposition coalition that has vowed to defeat the minority Conservatives next month.

Yesterday, Prime Minister Stephen Harper tried to fracture the coalition by extending an olive branch to the Liberals, saying he's hoping the new leader will "be willing to sit down with me" and talk about the economy.

The fate of the coalition will be among a wealth of pressing issues facing Ignatieff as he prepares to take over the leadership of a party battered by cash woes, two lost elections

"As far as I'm concerned, his leadership is entirely constitutional, legitimate and appropriate and nobody should think anything differently,"

Rae said.

Ignatieff wasn't speaking publicly yesterday but is expected to hold a news conference today after the Liberal caucus meeting.

Greek rioters target parliament

Opposition calls for government to quit

Riot police battled protesters outside Greece's parliament and in Athens suburbs yesterday, while opposition socialists called for the conservative government to quit in order to end the worst civil unrest in decades.

Rows of riot police squared off with demonstrators for more than an hour outside the parliament building before firing tear gas to disperse the crowd in fresh violence triggered by the shooting of a 15-year-old boy by police.

Bands of young protesters regrouped and threw stones at police, chanting:

Emergency talks

- Prime Minister Costas Karamanlis, whose New Democracy party has a one-seat majority, held emergency talks with the president and opposition leaders to urge them to close ranks against the rioters.

"Let parliament burn!"

On the fourth day of violence, protests spread to the Athens suburbs after the funeral of the boy, Alexandros Grigoropoulos, whose killing on Saturday triggered Greece's worst riots in decades, fanned by discontent over government and a slowing economy.

More than 5,000 people clad in black gathered at the cemetery, many chanting: "Cops, Pigs, Murderers!" As the boy's flower-covered white coffin was being buried, protesters clashed with police outside and one officer fired shots in the air to disperse an angry crowd.

The teen's killing touched a raw nerve among young Greeks, outraged at years of political scandals and rising levels of poverty and unemployment, worsened by the global economic downturn. REUTERS

Women happier sex: Poll

STUDY Men are happier with money, while women find greater joy in friendships and relationships with their children, co-workers and bosses, a new global survey reveals.

The online survey of 28,153 people in more than 51 countries by global marketing and information firm Nielsen found that as the world grapples with a recession and financial markets remain volatile, many people are reminding themselves that money can't buy happiness.

The Nielsen happiness

study found that globally, women are happier than men in 48 of the 51 countries surveyed in April 2008, and only in Brazil, South Africa and Vietnam were men found to be happier than women.

"Because they are happier with non-economic factors, women's happiness is more recession-proof which might explain why women around the world are happier in general than men are," Nielsen vice-president of consumer research Bruce Paul said in a statement.

Let's retire the Queen

Canada needs to grow up and end an outdated practice

The WestView

With apologies to Paul McCartney ... Her Majesty's a pretty nice girl, but why is she running my country?

As I've watched the remarkable events of the past week unfold, the most remarkable was the spectacle of Stephen Harper, hat in hand, tugging his forelock in the general direction of Michaëlle Jean, Mrs. Windsor's representative in Ottawa.

You're familiar with Mrs. Windsor? That nice old lady in London with the coris and the celebrity grandchildren? Her Majesty?

There hasn't been a lot of talk about the suitability of that exchange; I guess because most of us are relieved that Ms. Jean, a former Radio-Canada reporter with not one iota of experience in governance, just granted the prime minister's wish, and Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition doesn't get to run the country, at least not yet.

But why do Mrs. Windsor and her envoy still run the country? Until last week, they have been little more than glorified lawn ornaments. Inviting them to your charity garden party adds instant class. But what if Ms. Jean, who probably doesn't like Mr. Harper any more than Mr. Harper likes her, had decided to give the reins of power to Stéphane Dion and the balance of power to Chief Blothead Gilles Duceppe?

For one thing, we'd hear a lot more squawking about how it's time to end this outdated ridiculous subservience to Prince Charles' Mom. Instead, a grateful nation has decided to put aside any qualms about Ms. Jean, her former French citizenship, her rumoured separatist leanings, her absurd appointment as the Queen's representative, never mind the innate, fundamental absurdity of the Queen herself.

So what happens in January if Her Majesty's Loyal Etc. try to stick it to Stephen one more time? Back he goes, gripping his forelock, to visit Ms.

Jean, and she informs him that "we are not amused," and turns the government over to Michael or Rae and their little dog Jack? She can do that! She's Mrs.

We should send Ms. Jean back to Radio-Canada, tell Mrs. Windsor that it's time to retire as the Queen of Canada, thanks for the memories.

Windsor's envoy. Mrs. Windsor runs the country!

I simply can't believe we're still letting this happen. Here's what we need to do: Immediately, as a nation, we should grow up.

Then, we should send Ms. Jean back to Radio-Canada, tell Mrs. Windsor that it's time to retire as the Queen of Canada, thanks for the memories. Then we elect a president at large (as everyone mistakenly believes they vote for the prime minister anyway), while preserving the parliamentary democracy that we've come to know and love.

We do this through proportional representation, so we get the parties and the policies we want exactly in proportion to the popular vote. Now that's democracy.

And God Save Mrs. Windsor for another day.

A paper and a positive attitude at Corona Station

I am writing to thank your very friendly newspaper distributor at Corona Station. He is the older gentleman who wears glasses. He is the most pleasant, happy person to have hand me a paper at 6:45 a.m., and he sets a great tone for people scurrying around at that hour. I appreciate his genuineness and his positive attitude — helped me to frame my day!

Thank goodness for women's voices on politics

Until recently, it was unusual to see women writing in the Comments section under regional and national media print and online political stories. That has changed, and now we see thoughtful comments from women in among mostly male comments.

I say thank goodness. It's about time women spoke up — they are about 50 per cent of eligible voters.

Too many women stayed away from the polls this last October election — I don't expect that to happen in those numbers next election as women realize they can make a difference.

DON WILSON, MASTSTOWN, N.S.

A hunger for politics

I am sure many of us did not know that there was a word called "prorogue" and we all learned something new with this coalition agreement.

While we were discussing the newly discovered word "prorogue," somebody said this word sounds like "pierogi/perogie."

That was that — we got a sudden craving for perogies. We decided to prorogue our session and go for a perogie break. I thought that was funny.

ANANT NAGPUR, OTTAWA

Election worth the price tag

At this point the Liberal-NDP coalition will try to take power on the principle that "they can."

If this is allowed to proceed, every election which fails to give one party a majority will become a free-for-all, as all the parties try to form coalitions.

Let's go to the polls and let the people have their say — Tory or a Liberal-NDP-Bloc government. The cost of another election is small for getting a government which everyone will agree was actually elected by the people.

A store going out of business is seen in the Queens borough of New York yesterday. Telecom profit levels to be flatter FORECAST Profits for the telecom industry will become flatter in the face of falling demand due to the worsening economy and new competition in the wireless market, according to a forecast yesterday by the Conference Board of Canada.

The outlook forecast annual combined profits of about $7 billion between 2008 and 2011.

The board had calculated that industry profits for 2006 and 2007 were $5.6 billion and $6.5 billion, respectively.

At the forefront of the industry's woes is the collapse of the BCE buyout, the biggest leveraged buyout in the world, which was derailed after KPMG said the deal would leave BCE insolvent.

Though demand for wireless services is driving growth, "profit levels will remain flat over the next few years." REUTERS

Melrose was fired less than a month ago, only 16 games into the season. In the 11 games they have played since, the Lightning has only won once. When asked if that made him happy, he said, "Yeah it does, and any coach who tells you otherwise is a liar," Melrose told the FAN. "I hope Tampa Bay doesn't win a game in the next year."

Melrose also criticized Lightning forward Steven Stamkos, the first pick in the 2008 draft.

"Steven is not ready for the NHL," Melrose said. "Right now he's just not strong enough physically to play against defencemen who are six-foot-three or six-foot-four that can skate as good as him."

Dan Boyle can't hide the hint of satisfaction he gets out of seeing the Tampa Bay Lightning in the NHL basement.

"I'm only human, right?" Boyle joked. "But to see what has happened out there, it's probably more sad than anything for me because I still think it's a great place to play and it's very unfortunate all this stuff is going on."

The 32-year-old defenceman didn't realize it at the time, but the Lightning gave him the equivalent of a get-out-of-jail-free card when they kicked him to the curb in July after new owners Oren Koules and Len Barrie took over.

Boyle, who was asked to waive his no-trade clause before the ink had dried on his new six-year contract, ended up being dealt to the San Jose Sharks. While the Koules-Barrie overhaul has Tampa Bay (6-

The five-foot-11, 190-pounder from Ottawa has put the Lightning debacle behind him, not to mention a serious wrist injury that sidelined him for half of last season.

Boyle, who is second among NHL blue-liners with 10 goals and 14 assists for 24 points in 25 games, is hearing whispers he could be a Norris Trophy candidate if he keeps it up.

Although Boyle won a Stanley Cup with the Lightning in 2004, he calls the Sharks the "best team I've been on." But he is also aware the Sharks have been perennial under-achievers in the post-season and wants to help erase that label.

"Playoff hockey, as we all know, is totally different," Boyle said.

"We had a pretty good team in '04. We stepped it up to the next level in the playoffs. Until we get there, until we do that with the Sharks, it remains to be seen."

Competing at Beijing in the T54 class for athletes with different levels of spinal cord injuries and amputations, she won the 200- and 800-metre races within 90 minutes of each other, setting two world records.

She also won the 400 in record time and the 100 before finishing up in the 1,500 with a win by more than one second over her closest rival.

More zoom for Mazda3

Megaseller's feisty spirit alive and well in revamped model

JIM ROBINSON
for Metro Canada

Imagine you're in the shoes of Yoshiyuki Meada. He's the program manager for the 2010 Mazda3 and his job is to fix something that isn't broken.

One of every three Mazda vehicles sold around the world is a Mazda3. In Canada, the Mazda3 has improved in sales every year since it was introduced in 2003. In fact, 2008 will set another sales record, with people lining up to get a little Zoom Zoom in their lives.

What Meada did was take the overall Mazda3 design concept and keep what was working and refine the rest.

To get everyone on board, he insisted on designers and engineers from Mazda's styling centres visiting each other's countries to talk about the car and learn what consumers in different parts of the world were thinking. His idea was to instill what Mazda calls "the emotion of motion."

Although the 2010 and the current Mazda3 have virtually the same dimensions, much attention was paid to aerodynamics with things like panels under the body to smooth air flow with the car's overall coefficient of drag going from 0.31 down to 0.29.

The biggest visual change is the much-enlarged grille. While it retains the Mazda five-point design, the wide mouth is there, not just for improved cooling, but is an actual part of the aero package.

The cabin area underwent not just a major redesign with liberal use of soft-touch materials, but the switch to what Mazda

The 2010 Mazda3 sees a host of changes designed to improve on the outgoing model that was one of the most successful cars in the history of the company.

calls a Zone Layout.

Instrumentation is placed in zones of importance based on eye movement, the primary ones being the large tachometre on the left and speedometer on the right in pods directly in the line of sight of the driver.

Housed in a second zone is a Multi Information Display (MID) on the centre of the dash and raised 100 mm higher and to the right of the main gauges. Positioned here, it is still in the line of sight. Depending on the model and options, it shows fuel consumption, distance and even a 3.5-inch colour navigation screen.

The four-door sedan tested here will arrive in the early spring along with a five-door Sportback hatch in three levels of trim: GX, GS and GT.

The 2.0-litre, DOHC in-line four-cylinder engine that helped Mazda3 sales take off in 2008 is offered on the GX and GS. It produces 148 hp and 135 lb/ft of torque and comes with as standard five-speed automatic transmission or optional five-speed automatic driving the front wheels.

Fuel consumption numbers for the 2.0-litre manual and automatic are 8.1/5.9L/100 km city/highway and 8.6L/5.9L/100 km city/highway respectively.

Pricing will not be announced until early in January but it should be pretty much the same at the 2009, with the base car starting around $17,000 and the GT with automatic.

While my time with this car was brief, there's little doubt the Zoom Zoom spirit is alive and well in the 2010 Mazda3.

Winter safety on thin ice

SURVEY A recent GMAC Insurance survey in the U.S. revealed many drivers are stumped when it comes to proper safety procedures for winter weather driving.

Of the more than 5,000 licensed drivers surveyed across the nation, GMAC Insurance found several startling facts about driver competency during frozen or snowy conditions:

- 46 per cent were unaware their gas tank should be at least half full in order to continue providing heat in case of an emergency.
- 38 per cent didn't know driving while using cruise control, even in clear conditions, could be dangerous.
- 24 per cent did not know to turn the wheel in the direction of a skid.

One of the most significant misconceptions revealed in the survey was in regards to vehicles equipped with four-wheel drive. While four-wheel drive helps with traction in snow and ice, it does not replace good driving practices and taking the right precautions to stay safe.

Nevertheless, the GMAC Insurance survey showed that 70 per cent of drivers may exhibit a false sense of security when driving in snowy weather if their vehicle was equipped with four-wheel drive:

- 37 per cent feel they are less likely to have an accident.
- 21 per cent would drive during and right after a snowstorm.
- Nine per cent would feel superior to cars without four-wheel drive.
- Three per cent would drive faster than they would with only two-wheel drive.

The "fun" of motoring can be seen by some (many) as frivolous in these days where gasoline prices here can be affected overnight by storms and rebellions half a world away.

To me, a car is a form of time machine that lets you cover distances in one hour that would have been mind-boggling to those living in 1808.

Driving is hard work especially on super highways where the average speed is greater than that of airplanes a century ago. It takes concentration and, as we all know, it isn't cheap.

So that's why, in my opinion, occasionally enjoying the freedom a car can give is something to be savoured.

Which brings me around to the 2008 Honda S2000, a roadster you don't see a lot, but is considered by some as one of the great sportscars of the market and a sure collector car in the future.

When you look at it objectively, it's really a decade old and should be well behind current levels of performance and handling. But that's not the case.

I first saw what was to become the S2000 in 1995. It was a concept car called the SSM and about the size of a Mazda Miata. Frankly, it did not have the perky looks of the Miata so I dismissed it as just another exercise to gauge public reaction.

But Honda had other ideas. It re-emerged in 1999 to mark the 50th anniversary of the founding of the company that was taking place in 2000, thus the name. It also was the turning of the millennium, so Honda poured all its expertise into the car.

Incorporating the knowledge gained from Formula One and IndyCar, it had an engine of just 2.0-litres displacement with a carbon-fibre reinforced block and super-light forged-alloy pistons. Because this car was designed from the outset to rev to 9,000 rpm, special bearing alloys were used right out of IndyCar. Producing an amazing 240 hp, albeit at 8,600 rpm in the year 2000, the powerplant set new production car standards for volumetric efficiency.

Today the engine is larger at 2.2-litres producing 237 hp at 8,000 rpm with 162 lb/ft of torque. It remains today as the highest specific horsepower/litre normally aspirated production engine on the market. Fuel consumption is listed as 11.8L/100 km city and 8.4L/100 km highway.

The front suspension is racecar-derived double wishbones with shocks custom-fitted to soak up most road irregularities. This, along with a multi-link rear system that incorporates a TORSEN (TORque SENsing) differential, lets the suspension do the work. This allows the exceptionally rigid chassis to be free from classic cowl shake or axle tramping as the rear tires go over bumps or railroad tracks.

The front/rear weight distribution is a perfect 50/50 thanks to the engine sitting back so far back that it is almost mid-engined.

As you can guess, the S2000 is all about revs, or better yet, keeping them up.

From launch, you ease in the clutch and you feed in the gas sharply then go for second asap. After that, the traction starts to kick in and you soon find the combination of a stiff platform, compliant suspension and ability to squirt and turn thanks to the 50/50 weight bias results in a very pointable car.

Advantage files for bankruptcy

Car rental chain Advantage Rent-A-Car Inc. has filed for bankruptcy protection and closed about 40 per cent of its U.S. retail locations, citing a decline in the travel industry as customers cut their travel and discretionary spending. The company said it laid off 440 workers, or almost half its workforce. Advantage said it will continue operating at its remaining locations during the bankruptcy, and is exploring strategic alternatives, including a possible sale or merger. REUTERS

Let setting around the world (and getting paid for it), the life of a travel writer is a glamorous one. Trying to get into this coveted and competitive career isn't easy, prompting many to ask: How do I break into the biz? I regularly get e-mails from readers asking for advice. While I do my best to share what I know, it's nice to get a second opinion.

Meet David Farley, a New York-based writer who teaches travel writing at New York University. He has been widely published and is the author of the soon-to-be-released travel book, An Irreverent Curiosity: In Search of the Church's Strangest Relic in Italy's Oddest Town, available next spring.

David shares his expertise on how you can break into the travel writing biz: TAKE A TRAVEL WRITING

COURSE offered by schools in your area.

READ BOOKS ABOUT THE WRITING CRAFT. Travel Writing by Don George and published by Lonely Planet is a great place to start.

READ ARTICLES WRITTEN BY CELEBRATED TRAVEL WRITERS. The best travel writing captures a sense of place. Tap into your five senses to bring the place alive, adding depth and vividness to your descriptions. Add quotes and historical/political context to situate the destination.

IT'S IMPORTANT THAT YOUR ARTICLE HAS AN "ANGLE," a unique take on the place. Editors want something that hasn't been done before. Up-and-coming neighborhoods, trends and unique destinations always make for a good angle.

GO ONE STEP BEYOND the realm of an average tourist. Like a reporter, you must talk to people, arrange interviews and get relevant quotes.

MOST TRAVEL EDITORS DON'T WANT TO READ PROPOSALS, they want to see the finished article, already written and polished. Find out the e-mail address of a newspaper's travel editor and send it on. If that editor wants the piece, they'll buy it from you.

PITCH YOUR WORK to local papers, magazines, newsletters and travel websites. Try to get published anywhere and everywhere.

TRAVEL WRITERS DON'T MAKE MUCH MONEY. On assignment, it's nice hotels; at home, it's bare cupboards and ramen noodles. Few people can make a living solely from it. Either stick to your day job and write on the side, or become a full-time writer that focuses on travel, but also writes about other passions.

DRIVE IS MOST IMPORTANT TO SUCCEED. The most successful students I've taught weren't the most talented, but rather the most determined.

Good luck and safe travels.

Seeking redemption

Love scene put Will Smith on defensive in Seven Pounds

ROBERT ABELE
for Metro Canada

Will Smith's status as the world's biggest movie star — whether as an earth defender (Independence Day), superhero (Hancock), or last man standing (I Am Legend) — doesn't make it any easier for the actor to handle love scenes.

In his newest film, the drama Seven Pounds, Smith's character — a haunted man seeking redemption — finds romantic solace one night in the arms of a cardiac patient played by Rosario Dawson.

No such solace existed for Smith on the set for those moments.

"Will is shockingly shy about intimacy with strangers," says Dawson, who says her gregarious, hard-working co-star pushed the filming of their kissing scenes for weeks, "to the point where I started getting nervous about my breath."

And when it came to that day's filming, she noticed Smith revving up for it by loudly proclaiming to himself, "Yeah, we're gonna GET this scene! Whooo! Yeah, I'm ready to go today!"

"I was like, 'You're kind of freakin' me out, like I need a little calm to go into this, some candles and nice music, and you're screaming like you're playing football or something," said Dawson, laughing at the memory.

"But it was so sweet. Everybody could tell he was really nervous."

Smith, whose wife of many years is actress Jada Pinkett Smith, smiles good-naturedly in talking about his on-camera skittishness regarding sex.

He explains it by saying that he lives in fear that a woman cast opposite him in those moments will look at her famous married scene partner as an opportunistic groper.

"I need women to be comfortable around me, and doing a love scene with our clothes off just puts me in a defensive space," he said. "But it also hurts the acting if I'm in that space."

The idea, he said, is to get to a comfortable point, "Where a hand can brush up against her and it's not, 'Oh, excuse me.'"

At least his romantic interlude in Seven Pounds was a necessary one for a story whose message of renewal in the face of debilitating trauma has come to mean everything for its relentlessly positive and upbeat star/producer.

"The spring is always coming," says Smith. "And this character didn't realize that. He didn't know that what got broken could be repaired. And I love that transformative power of love, how you've got to be prepared to catch the wave of new life."

Ruffalo's brother dies after shooting

CRIME Actor Mark Ruffalo's brother has died a week after he was found at his Beverly Hills home with a gunshot wound to the head, police said yesterday.

Scott Ruffalo, 39, a hair stylist, was taken off life support Monday night, police said.

Ruffalo died hours after a woman wanted by police in connection with the shooting — Shaha Mishaal Adham, 26 — turned herself in and was charged with attempted murder.

In the wake of Ruffalo's death, she is expected to be charged with murder. Brian Scofield, 29, who police named as a "person of interest" in the case, turned himself in along with Adham but he has since been released.

Leno leading prime time

IntelleVision

TALKED TO DEATH: Jay Leno's career has been an anxious curiosity ever since NBC let it be known that his Tonight Show slot was being handed over to Conan O'Brien, and for months now everybody — including Leno — has been acting like he'd be moving to ABC as soon as Jeff Zucker and NBC would let him slip free of the bonds of his contract.

That bit of conventional wisdom was knocked on the head yesterday with the news that NBC would be giving Leno a 10 p.m. weekday slot for a new talk show, starting in the fall of 2009. As things stand now, that means three different talk show slots on the network running from primetime to late night, with Leno, O'Brien and Jimmy Fallon all on NBC's payroll as hosts. (Or 3 1/2, according to the L.A. Weekly's Nikki Finke, who reminds us of Carson Daly's spot on NBC's schedule, which seems charitable of her.)

The decision might look like NBC belatedly acknowledging Leno's value to the network, but it has more to do with Zucker and programming henchman Ben Silverman's singular focus on the bottom line, and their fervent intention to cut down on the number of weekly hours of network programming. Any way you look at it, it's a cost-cutting move.

Leno as the lead-in for local news shows at 11 p.m. will play well with NBC affiliate stations all over the U.S., though the move is betting everything on Leno's late night audience figuring out how to record CSI on their PVRs so they can tune in — a big gamble since Leno's numbers rely heavily on older viewers who aren't as comfortable with changing long-standing habits or delayed viewing.

Patt Morrison of the Los Angeles Times sees the boomer/oldster angle as the story, and not the network penny-pinching.

"Leno at 10?" Morrison wrote on a Times blog. "From The Tonight Show to The Evening Show? Pretty soon the nation will be lining up for the seniors' Early Bird Dinner Special at 4 p.m., and then coming home to fall asleep right after the Leno monologue, if there is one on the new show, and finally waking up at 3 a.m. to a screaming bladder and screaming infomercials."

And so a generation begins passing from view in a fog of drowsiness and incontinence.

Rick McGinnis writes about music, movies, books and television, but not opera.

Il through history the great religions have spoken to the return of a future Teacher. The Christians hope for the return of the Christ, the Buddhists look for the coming of a new Buddha, while the Muslims await the Imam Madhi, the Hindus a reincarnation of Krishna and the Jews the Messiah. How will we know Him? Surely He will ring our hearts with a message of sharing, justice and brotherhood. How can we prepare the way for Him? Each day brings opportunities, large and small, to act in favor of unity and justice. Our willingness to share will make a real difference in our world.

Friends rely on Smith for advice

MARRIAGE Actor Will Smith is under pressure from his famous friends to make his marriage to wife Jada Pinkett Smith work because they're constantly coming to him for relationship advice, imdb.com reports.

The tight-knit couple are preparing to celebrate their 11th year of married life on Dec. 31. But Smith's famous pals have "terrified" him by marking their union as the golden standard in Hollywood.

"I was with (rapper) Redman the other day (and) he said, 'Man, listen. I've got this relationship that I'm trying to make work, but I'm telling you, if you and Jada don't work, I'm done,'" Smith tells People.com. "That so terrifies me that there are people's lives that I can affect like that just with little stuff, not even having to do anything big. So I don't want to break that ... I might mess something up, and that sorta keeps me in a place where I'm really focused and paying attention, and I just don't want to step wrongly."

Lohan to write of split

PEOPLE Lindsay Lohan is begging the paparazzi to stop asking her if she's split from girlfriend Samantha Ronson, assuring fans she'd write the news on her blog if they ever broke up, imdb.com reports.

Rumours have swirled about the couple's relationship status since they began dating earlier this year.

They have repeatedly denied splitting, and Lohan has once again taken to her MySpace.com blog to "prove all the liars wrong" — less than a week after slamming previous break-up reports.

"(The paparazzi) should just stop asking altogether, once and for all if she and I are broken up because frankly, if we ever, ever did ... I would say it before they could even think of asking ... I'd say it here probably," Lohan wrote.

Smith defends Grey's bosses

CAREER Actress Brooke Smith has defended her former TV bosses at Grey's Anatomy, insisting she has "no hard feelings" after her lesbian character was written out of the show, imdb.com reports.

Network bosses announced Smith would be axed from the show last month, sparking rumours she was written out of the series in a bid to end her character Dr. Erica Hahn's burgeoning homosexual affair.

Grey's creator Shonda Rhimes refuted the reports, telling Us Weekly, "Brooke Smith was obviously not fired for playing a lesbian. Clearly it's not an issue as we have a lesbian character on the show — Calliope Torres (Sara Ramirez). Unfortunately, we did not find that the magic and chemistry with Brooke's character would sustain in the long run."

Actor Isaiah Washington, who was let go from the show last year, lashed out at his former bosses, calling their decision to cut Smith "disgusting."

But Smith has defended Rhimes, adding, "It's an end of a chapter. It was a good experience. I'd played gay characters before, and I don't think that's going to end.

There's no hard feelings. I have other projects now, so it is what it is."

I weigh 200: Winfrey

HEALTH In the January's O magazine, Oprah Winfrey confesses that she now weighs 200 pounds and has "fallen off the wagon," usmagazine.com reports.

"I'm mad at myself," writes Winfrey. "I'm embarrassed. I can't believe that after all these years, all the things I know how to do, I'm still talking about my weight. I look at my thinner self and think, 'How did I let this happen again?'"

In the article, Winfrey says she has struggled with an out-of-balance thyroid and the condition made her develop "a fear of working out."

She confessed that she's packed on 40 pounds since she weighed 160 pounds in 2006.

"Yes, you're adding correctly; that means the dreaded 200," Winfrey says."

Twain's dating sparks rumours

RELATIONSHIPS Singer Shania Twain has sparked reports she's dating the husband of the woman her ex is alleged to have had an affair with after the mystery man was spotted escorting Twain around New York recently, femalefirst.co.uk reports.

Twain split from her husband Robert (Mutt) Lang in May, following his revelation that he was romancing the couple's longtime secretary Marie-Anne Thiebaud, who was the manager of their Swiss estate.

Jolie spends less on Pitt

PEOPLE It appears even stars are affected by the recession.

In Touch has learned that Angelina Jolie's 45th birthday present to Brad Pitt will be another motorcycle. But this year's base price on the new Ducati is $12,000 US — much less compared to last year's gift that cost a reported $100,000.

Still, Jolie knows what Pitt likes, intouch-weekly.com reports.

"Since Angie is always in a dilemma of what to buy Brad, she's getting him the new Ducati Monster 1100S titanium," an insider tells In Touch.

Metro Recipe of the Day

Chicken with Peas and Cilantro

INGREDIENTS:

- 3/4 cup (175 mL) canned crushed tomatoes
- 1/2 cup (125 mL) coconut milk
- 1/2 cup (125 mL) chopped cilantro
- 2 tbsp (25 mL) fresh lime juice
- 2 tbsp (25 mL) soy sauce
- 1 tbsp (15 mL) light brown sugar
- 3 scallions, thinly sliced
- 3 cloves garlic, minced
- 1 tbsp (15 mL) minced fresh ginger
- 1 tsp (5 mL) salt
- 1 whole chicken (about 3 1/2 lbs/2 kg), cut into 8 serving pieces, skin removed
- 1 cup (250 mL) rice
- 1 package (10 oz/285 g) frozen peas

METHOD:

- Preheat oven to 350°F (180°C). In Dutch oven, combine tomatoes, coconut milk, 1/4 cup (50 mL) of cilantro, the lime juice, soy sauce, brown sugar, scallions, garlic, ginger and 1/2 tsp (2

- mL) of salt.
- Add chicken to Dutch oven, turning to coat. Bring mixture to a boil over medium heat. Cover, place in oven, and bake for 40 minutes or until chicken is cooked through.
- Meanwhile, in medium covered saucepan, bring 2 1/4 cups (550 mL) water to a boil. Add rice and remaining 1/2 tsp (2 mL) salt. Reduce heat to a simmer, cover, and cook 17 minutes or until rice is tender.
- Stir peas into Dutch oven and cook 5 minutes or until heated through. Stir in remaining 1/4 cup (50 mL) cilantro. Serve sauce and chicken over rice.
